THE NEED OF A MORE COMPLETE TROL-LEY SYSTEM.

AT PRESENT THE LINES ARE FRAGMENTARY-AN EXTENSION CONNECTING THE RIVER AND THE SOUND WANTED BY RESIDENTS.

The great need of Westchester County intereation is the completion of the projected trolley lines that will connect the Hudson River with those on Long Island Sound. The trolley line system in the upper and middle portions of the county is incomplete at present. Sing Sing has an excellent trolley service, but it really runs from nowhere to nowhere. It commences at the New-York Central Railroad station, runs up "the hill" that is the inevitable possession of all the Hudson River towns, and then one branch runs southward for about a mile and ends, while the other branch goes as far east as the camp-meeting grounds, where it likewise finds a terminus. The only extension at present contemplated by the Sing Sing line is a continuation of its tracks east to Pleasantville, a distance of about five miles, which will form a desirable union of the Hudson River and Harlem divisions of the Central Railroad.

White Plains, the county seat, situated in the interior of the county, has a splendid trolley line, and upon its extension to Mamaroneck, on the south. and Tarrytown, on the west, rest the hopes of the public interested in obtaining an across-county union of the river and Sound districts. It seems probable that the building of the section of the White Plains system between that village and Mamaroneck will begin within a month. As matters now stand, the White Plains road runs as far west as Eimsford, and then there is a gap of some two miles and a half before the Hudson River at Tarrytown is reached. As a certificate has been refused to the proposed Tarrytown trolley line by the State Railroad Commissioners, it is expected that the White Plains line will obtain the necessary franchise from the Greenburg authorities, that of the aufrom the Greenburg authorities, that of the au-thorities of Tarrytown village having already been granted, and that, in a short time, at least before the beginning of the Westchester County Fair, in Beptember, whose grounds are along the line, it will have cars in operation. Then, if the Mamaroneck section in the mean time has been completed, there will be an admirable means of rapid and direct com-munication between the Hudson River and the Bound.

munication between the Hudson River and the Bound.

The completed line between Tarrytown, White Plains and Mamaroneck will by no means be a convenience for business and practical purposes alone, but will afford a most enjoyable trip for pleasure seekers and sightseers. To be able to obtain at a small cost, and within a few hours' time, a sight of the Hudson and the Sound, together with the delightful rural scenery of the interior of Westchester County, will attract thousands of passengers daily at almost every season in the year. And for those living in either the Sound or river sections of the county having business to transact at the county seat the completed troiley system will be a great convenience, both in the matter of direct and quick communication and the reduced cost of transportation.

u." were the final words in the invitation of Hiawatha Lodge of Free Masons sent out for the exon Monday night, when the conferring of third degree on several candidates took place and the historical lecture was given by Colonel E. M. L. Ehlers, grand secretary of the State body. old axiom that "no two things can occupy the same place unless that place is big enough to hold them both" proved true in this instance, for Ma-sonic Hall, as roomy as it is, was not big enough to hold the members and the friends who came to give the master, Henry B. There were so many present that it would appear a slight upon the others if a few names were selected for publication; but the "eight hours set apart for refreshment and sleep" were seriously encroached upon before the brethren separated. There was a supper served in Ascalon Castle after the work of the lodge was completed, and then it was close to midnight.

One of the features of the evening, and a complete surprise to the recipient, was the presentation of a gold watch to Past Master Gideon D. Pond by the brethren. The presentation address was made by Past Master and ex-Judge Isaac N. Mills, who related many pleasant reminiscences of the thirty-six years of Masonic life and twenty years of secretaryship of Brother Pond. In a word, it was a "big time" for the mystic brethren.

NORTH TARRYTOWN.

The Board of Trustees of North Tarrytown met n Monday night, pursuant to adjournment. The which there have already been some eightyodd ballots, was rot brought up. The proposed building of a public pier, to run out into the river toward Kingsland Point, upon lands under water toward Kingsland Point, upon lands under water belonging to the Rand Drill Company, was consid-ered. The drill company, it is understood, will per-mit the building of the pier, and the village is de-sirous of using it. The matter was disposed of by being referred to a committee, with power, and an appropriation of $1,000 was made with which to begin the building of the structure. The Board also appropriated the sum of $5,000 to be used in repair-ing and improving the streets.

A Democratic town convention, composed of four delegates from each election district of the town, was held at White Plains on Monday evening, for County Committee, and ex-Sheriff John Duffy was duly elected. At their meeting on Monday night the White Plains Board of Trustees further considered the amendments to the village charter and several additional amendments were agreed upon, the most important being one concerning the highways; another amendment increased the number of wards in the village from three to five, and the trustees from six to ten. A section was also adopted which will give the trustees authority to appoint a Board of Police Commissioners of three members. The charter, as amended, will be forwarded to Albany for passage by the Legislature this week. The Board also considered favorably the question of paving or macadamizing several more streets in the village. amendments to the village charter and several ad-
